From Spiderman's face made of sushi rice and nori to panda bears, railways, bees and mice made out of riceBy Midwest Book ReviewFACE FOOD RECIPES offers a how-to approach for making Charaben at home - faces sculpted in food. From Spiderman's face made of sushi rice and nori to panda bears, railways, bees and mice made out of rice, this takes decorating to a whole new level in an outstanding presentation perfect for culinary libraries. Recipes and color photos on facing pages make it easy for home cooks to reproduce eye-catching results.1 of 3 people found the following review helpful. BENTO BENTO BENTOBy K. HairstonFace Food Recipes in my opinion is a must have for the "cool" book to say you possess and read. Another awesome book from Mark Batty and Author, Christopher Salyers (sequel to his first "Face Food: The Visual Creativity of Japanese Bento Boxes") shows how easy and how hard it is to make these bento boxes. This is NOT your average cook book, nor would you want it to be. Seriously, for anyone that loves to have a book on their coffee table that quickly makes as a fun conversational piece, or a gift this season or for your own personal love for Bentos and or exploration of, this is a must buy. 5 Stars of fun!

Face Food Recipes builds on the already successful Face Food by giving the public what it has been asking for most: descriptive how-to guides for making charaben bentos at home! Face Food Recipes pairs each bento with an illustrated guide, in Paint-by-Numbers style, showing the reader how to assemble these adorable little visual lunches. With ingredient lists, cooking and preparation instructions, a how-to glossary covering basic Japanese bento terms and even a fancy ribbon page marker, Face Food Recipes will help American moms and dads mimic their favorite charaben designs (or have tons of fun trying).
