I first saw the book at London's Moti Mahal Restaurant, arguably the most satisfactory restaurant among that city's fabulous subcontinent cuisine ones, where they sell it, but preferred to order it from instead of carrying it along after my lunch there. I presume they sell this book for a reason and if it allows you to recreate at home at least some of the fastastic food you can enjoy at Moti Mahal, it will be money well spent. The recipes we've essayed at home surely point towards that direction.

The Grand Trunk Road is one of South Asia's oldest and longest roads. For centuries, it has linked the eastern and western regions of the Indian subcontinent, running from Bengal, across north India, into Peshawar in Pakistan up to Afghanistan. Today it

About the Author Hardeep Singh Kohli is a British writer and radio and television presenter. His most recent venture has been his one-man show The Nearly Naked Chef, a mixture of stand-up comedy and cookery, which won critical acclaim at the Edinburgh Festival. Anirudh Arora is head chef at Moti Mahal, a relaxed Indian restaurant in the heart of London's West End.
