FreemanI collect Benedictines on Postage Stamps, and since the Benedictine monks were serious players in the development of viticulture and the making of wine, I need this book. It doesn't deal with stamp collecting, but the info I found was so interesting that I wound up adding a bunch of stamps to my collecting. If you're an oenophile, you will want to get this perspective on the history of wine and the role that monastics had in giving us what we have today, including champagne. "Wine to gladden the hearts of men " Ps 104:15By Gregory G.In the history of wine both sparkling and still, this is a great addition. The church has had its hands in the development of many things and it's nice to hear about this essential beverage that shaped and sustained history.
